

VARUN KARAD
Co-Founder and CEO

Young, restless, and hard-working business leader, who likes to get his hands dirty. I learnt the ropes of managing and growing a company, by turning around our family pharmaceutical business during my early 20s (this was my MBA course).

I am also an avid learner and continue to complement my hands-on learnings with regular courses from the top educational institutions across the world. I am currently leveraging my accumulated experiences and learnings towards growing renewables in India, ranging from solar, green hydrogen, Bio LPG, Biocng and waste to energy.

The valuable lessons learnt from my experience as the Chief Business Officer at GPS Renewables have equipped me with the skills and knowledge necessary to excel in my new venture as a co-founder. Effective stakeholder management, comprehensive project management techniques, and crisis management resilience are among the key learnings that will shape the success of my new endeavour.

As a BioEnergy entrepreneur, I am passionate about identifying and supporting innovative companies that are shaping the future of our world. At RED, our pioneering approach to bioenergy has enabled us to offer an integrated platform for the industry needs. My role as Co-founder and CEO encompasses not just leadership but a hands-on engagement with problem-solving, technological innovation and business process optimization.

Experience:
